

Professional Development Overarching Themes

Social-Emotional Development and Learning Pre-K to Adolescence

Students' Communication Competencies and Social Responsibilities

Constructing Students' Knowledge to Problem-Solve and Innovate

Fostering the Leadership of Administrators, Teachers, Students and Parents

Mission

We are committed to actively contributing to drive change and achieve results tailored to Religious and Independent Schools through academically rigorous, respectful and research-based professional learning for teachers and administrators.

Global and Digital Society

Through purposeful workshops, webinars and self-directed learning opportunities, K-12 educators deepen their knowledge, enrich their practices, and prepare students to become empowered learners in today's global and interconnected society.

In-Person Professional Development Series

CTLE Credit approved

Nothing replaces in-person training led by an expert who can adapt, or extend a concept or practice based on the reaction of the audience. Religious and independent schools in the state of New York are hosting professional development series tailored to the needs of the schools.

Our training is aligned with Fordham's standards for the rigorous academic endeavor, reflective pedagogy, and a commitment to social justice, personal responsibility, and equity for all learners

Online Professional Development Series

CTLE Credit approved

Live Webinars

Webinars are designed in response to the interests and needs of educators. They are academically rigorous and provide teachers with strategies that enable them to unlock the full potential of their students while creating a supportive and engaging classroom environment.

For more information and to register, visit bit.ly/fordhampdrpcpdregistration.

Chat & Network

These monthly events invite educators to meet with a colleague, guest, or an invited speaker to share successes, exchange ideas to problem solve, connect, and become part of a Professional Community of Education Leaders.

Watch past sessions & register for upcoming Chat and Network events when you visit bit.ly/fordhampdrchatandnetwork.

Self-Directed Learning

Recorded webinars invite educators to learn on their own time. The PDRC on-demand menu includes recordings of live webinars, one-hour summaries of in-person series, and pre-recorded videos. They all qualify for CTLE credit provided that the user demonstrates mastery by passing a quiz.

Resources for Educators

Monthly Newsletter

The Fordham PDRC publishes a monthly newsletter with the purpose of continually supporting the educators of religious and independent schools through articles that reflect the current themes of professional learning. They can be utilized as timely classroom resources. The newsletter also offers a venue to celebrate school events.

Catch the latest monthly newsletter release on bit.ly/pdrmonthlynewsletter.

LinkedIn Page

The posts on the Fordham PDRC LinkedIn feature selected articles published in our newsletter and thus extend the resources to the larger educators' community. We post photos of workshops, the Chat & Network, and other professional events.
